Commissioners of the California Transportation Commission
c/o ctc.catc.ca.gov
1120 N Street, MS-52
Sacramento, CA 95814

Dear Commissioners:

I am writing to comment on an item on your agenda for December 7, 2017.

I regret that I cannot attend your meeting in person to comment on this item.

My concern is on Tab #38 under the heading Approval of Project for Future Consideration of Funding. The project in question is proposed by the City of Sonora and is listed under Resolution E-17-77 Ref. #2.2.c.(4).

The project is not ready and this project is not wanted.

The community has grave concerns over this project. A hastily prepared Mitigation of Negative Declaration was approved in spite of deficiencies pointed out by engineers and local school representatives.

One city council member stated that this was the most negatively received proposal he had seen since his election. The Mayor stated that no one likes this project as proposed. In a three-hour public hearing, not one person spoke in favor of the project.

Our understanding is that the California Transportation Commission is looking for "shovel-ready" projects that will reduce traffic congestion, greenhouse gas emissions and fuel consumption.

I need to tell you this project would have the complete opposite effect. The proposed project would cause traffic snarls leading to more carbons released into the air and traffic jams causing vehicles to burn more gasoline.

The description in your agenda packet states that this proposed project will incorporate pedestrian amenities including benches, trash receptacles, improved lighting, an informational kiosk and pocket parks.

Following the discussion at the city council meeting, I can assure you that all of those items will be removed from the final plan. The City of Sonora is asking you to fund a proposal that will in no way reflect the final project. As proposed, this project is unacceptable to the community.

Included in the materials submitted with this letter are two items.

The first is an article from our local Union Democrat newspaper reporting on the community outcry over the proposed project.

The second item is a 28 page petition with 389 signature of citizen opposing proposed street closures and landscaping projects reducing the on street parking.

The proposal before you is a project that our community cannot support.

Please vote against the City of Sonora's proposal in Tab #38 of your agenda.

The City of Sonora has considerably more work to do before a viable project can be proposed.

Sincerely,

Elena Linehan

Sonora Council approves analysis for downtown intersection amid fierce opposition

The City of Sonora will seek a $722,000 grant to reconfigure the intersection of Washington, Snell and Elkin streets, near the Red Church, despite a strong showing of opposition from the community at a special meeting Monday night.

Councilman George Segarini called it one of the most negatively received proposals in the three years since his election to the Sonora City Council.

“This is a tough one,” Segarini said before voting in favor of seeking the grant that would pay for preliminary engineering, final design and ultimately construction.

Roughly 40 people attended the public meeting that was called for the sole purpose of approving an environmental analysis that would allow the city to seek the money from the California Transportation Commission.

The deadline to apply for the grant is Wednesday.

More than a dozen people spoke during public comments to express their concerns about the way the project is presented in a conceptual plan, largely about how the reconfiguration would affect traffic flow, pedestrian safety and parking in the downtown area.

Many opponents said the process felt rushed and environmental analysis was inadequate.

The project is part of Vision Sonora, a grant-funded plan approved by the council in 2013 that’s aimed at improving the city’s appearance and mobility.

Previous efforts to seek grants for the project failed because the city either became ineligible for the particular funding or because other proposals were selected above it. The city recently became aware of the latest opportunity through Senate Bill 1, a gas tax that goes into effect next month.

Rachelle Kellogg, the city’s community development director, said if the city receives the money, it would have until May 2019 to complete the final engineering and designs before construction.

Mayor Connie Williams said several times throughout the meeting that the conceptual plan is subject to change, which left some in the room questioning the veracity of the environmental analysis that the council later approved.

“You are approving a mitigated negative declaration based on the project description in that document, and yet, it sounds like you’re saying that is not the project as designed as described in that document,” said Stephanie Suess, whose husband owns a building near the intersection. “I think that’s a slippery slope.”

Robin Baral, deputy city attorney, said the document is valid as long as any changes made to the project after its approval aren’t considered “substantial” under CEQA guidelines, though what constitutes a substantial change was left ambiguous.

Despite repeated assurances that the public will be able to provide input on the final designs, Sonora resident David Morgan didn’t seem comforted.

“You keep on talking about how we’ll have all of this input and you’ve had a lot tonight but seem to have gone in a different direction,” Morgan said.

Others who spoke against the project included longtime City Engineer Jerry Fuccillo, civil engineer Galen Gritz, and Chet White, transportation director for Sonora Union High School District, who was concerned about the corners being wide enough for buses to make the turn and potential impacts on student safety.

Elena Linehan, who owns rental property in downtown Sonora and worked as the city’s Main Street manager in the 1980s, warned the council of accepting the grant money, because then they must deliver on what was promised.

“Once you accept this grant, the deliverables are locked in,” Linehan said. “If your grant funds bulb-outs and crosswalks, you have to build them.”

Kellogg said that about $76,000 of the total $722,000 grant would be used for final engineering and design.

That means if the council decided to back out of the project after the final designs were completed, it would have to give the state back the $76,000 spent.

When asked what would happen if the city backed out now, Kellogg said it could make getting other grants from the same place more difficult.

Gritz told the council shortly before they approved the project that they shouldn’t worry about “fear-mongering” when it came to losing grant money.

Councilman Jim Garaventa said he shared many of the concerns expressed by the public Monday night, especially when considering the potential impact on an area of town with a number of historical landmarks such as the iconic Red Church.

Garaventa said he also didn't like the way the project has been rolled out to the public, but he felt that safety at the intersection needs to be improved due to accidents involving vehicles and pedestrians.

The council voted 4-0 to approve the analysis needed to seek the $722,000 grant, with Councilman Matt Hawkins absent.

Segarini said he hoped to see as many people at future meetings regarding the project's final design.
